Volunteers Wanted!

Oral History Volunteers

Queenswood Country Park and Arboretum are looking for Oral History Volunteers to support the Queenswood Heritage Gateway Project.

As a Queenswood Oral History Volunteer, you will learn how to conduct oral history interviews with people who have a connection with Queenswood. These might be people who live nearby, people who have special memories of the park or people who've worked here; staff, conservationists, contractors and many more. You will be involved in recording their stories and creating a new oral history archive which will capture the unwritten history of the country park for generations to come. You will receive accredited training and on-going support from Julia Letts, an accredited trainer for the Oral History Society, and you will be part of a small, committed volunteer team who will help create the audio trail.

Archive Volunteers

Queenswood Country Park and Arboretum are looking for Archive Volunteers to support the Queenswood Heritage Gateway Project. Working with heritage partners Herefordshire Archive & Records Centre, Leominster Museum and Hereford Museum and Art Gallery, you will be part of a team of volunteer archivists working to collate images, text and other materials relating to Queenswood and Dinmore Hill throughout the ages. You will receive training and on-going support from a trained archivist and you will be part of a small, committed volunteer team working on this project.

Application deadline: Monday 10th September 2018
