It is better you discuss with your father and amicably settle the issues between you. Otherwise your mother can file police complaint against your father and all other proceedings can be initiated against him.

Which personal law applies in your case?

Are you all Hindu?

Is the said shop owned by your father, or IT is on rent?

Which are the other properties owned by your father?

What is nature of ownership of property(ies); self earned/acquired, ancestral?

Has any LOCAL counsel that has examined the mutation records with all link docs opined that nature of property ownership is ancestral?

The other property (ies) is/are agricultural land, rural, Urban, or it is a building?

Are daughters of your father married?

Are sons of yor father major/adult?

The property is in which state?

Confirm!

IN case of Hindu male;

His, sons/daughters/wife have NO forced share in his self earned/acquired estate/property.

Wife is not a Co-parcener in ancestral property of husband.

Hindu husband/father is liable to maintain;

his wife

his sons till they attain adulthood daughters and marry them as per his resources.

Although spouse and children can allege DV, that may need to be established.

False allegations become ground for separation as; Cruelty.

The said brothers and relatives have NO reason or right to influence the father as in query to harass, abuse, beat the spouse, children.

The spouse and children can of course approach state/police for alleged harassment, nuisance, undue influence and prove the allegations...

However IT shall be better to involve the elders of the family, well wishers, panchayat, community leaders, mediators to find amicable solution to the issue and resolve the matter.

If required, state/police can be involved and matter can be on records, for future reference.

In the end IT is spouses, children that shall be affected by unnecessary altercations, family disputes and if shop is the only source of income then income from shop that is required to maintain the family may be gone.

IT is entirely family's internal and private matter to change the location of shop and can be solved within four walls of the family or with outside help.

Hope you are clear after reading all posts and may act wisely.

Ur family is mega Hindu joint family.all are living in same house.what is the reason to quarrel with u &Ur mother sister and others. If Ur earning members thencut off from him and go far away from him to lead peaceful life. Ur mother can file maintenance suit against him if his daughters are unmarried and no earnings they can also clm for maintenance .if any ancestral property is their file civil suit for part ition

Rgds,

Vinay.

Hi,

Sorry for replying after so many months.

I think you have misunderstood me. I was concerned about my family and didn't want them to tear apart due to all the problems. I merely wanted to prevent these people from mentally manipulating my father, or my father to trust us enough.

Our relatives live separately, maybe like 2km away from us and the shop is located there. Theirs is a joint family. Ours is a nuclear family. (from father's side) always envy us due to many reasons (financial differences mostly) and didn't like the fact that my mother was so spiritually inclined, or that we don't like mixing with them so much because of their behaviour towards us. As a result they used to spread rumours to everyone, and speak ill of us to my father, mentally manipulating him. We did have valid proof of these issues.

I wanted to take legal action against my relatives, not against my father. But later, knowing that adding fuel to fire will cause more problems, and especially because they are relatives, I didn't want to escalate the issues further.

So we did a family counselling and my father seems to do much better now.

I thank you everyone for your valuable input.

With all due respect, we didn't have any such intent. However, before you judge or assume any further, I would request you to kindly go through the reply I just posted before this in the forum.

I appreciate your time and understanding. Thank you
