Hello everyone,,

Mid 20's, looking to go back to school. Employability and the eventual ability to earn a good income are my priorities. I don't think I'm cut out for Engineering/CS, most trades don't interest me, but statistics/strategy/finance does.

Just trying to get an idea on if Business degrees are still a worthwhile pursuit. The career prospects, if jobs are plentiful after graduating, and if salaries are decent. I really don't want to spend 4yrs/money on something that's going to be useless.
