Dear Ali,

If u r interested in conventional areas of Finance then ICWA with CA is the best bet.

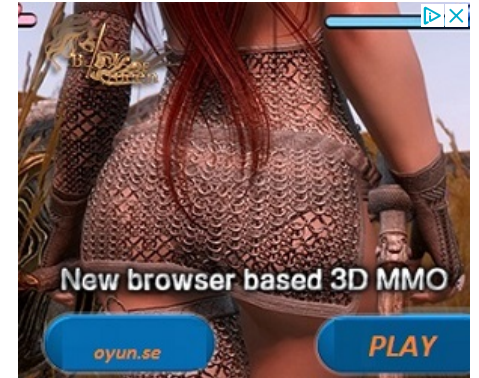

If u r interested in fanciful areas like treasury, Investment banking & M & A etc then MBA with CA will be good.

Best of luck.

Do CA with MBA finance if u want to work in industry in finance deptt. If u want to go for practise,do CS,if u want to work for MNCs in accounts/audit department,then go for CPA

First focus on CA and complete it. That is MOST IMPORTANT

If you want add to choices

CA with CIMA (UK)

CA with LLb

CA with CFA (USA)

CA with CFA (ICFAI)

CA with CISA

CA with SAP.....

Much depends on what are your preferences

Dear ali

You are pursuing CA that itself is a well renowned degree that will fetch you a handsome career but in today's world since the competition is so high it's better to do something extra .

1. The best option after CA is to prepare for CAT to get admission in Tier 1 B schools . i am suggesting that because from whichever field you start your career after spending so many years as a doer you eventually upgraded the management level where you only have to manage the other people in the organisation . so it's better to get the MBA degree and start your career as a manager itself if you want to join the big league . If you do not get admission in the big MBA schools then it's better not to pursue the course as you might be knowing the fact that lots of MBA are coming every year which is of no worth as your knowledge gained at the big B school matters for your growth not your degree . and after preparing for CAT you can also give various Government job exams

2. but if you do not want to go for MBA then your choice should be dependant to your need that means in whatever field you want to go or get job you should choose the course that will help you in your growth . i.e. Domain focussed course

Doing the course only for the purpose of getting a degree weighs nothing in the eyes of employer unless your knowledge is useful in your daily working
