Do we need more stringent entry into CA?

God is great (CA final student) 22 July 2010

Looking at our CA final results which I have also failed to clear, Is there a need for more stringent entry into CA course so that atleast ordinary people may be spared from the trouble of wasting 5years of precious time with no return at the end of the period because it seems that ICAI is looking only for the greatest of the greatest to be admitted into the membership register. So, is it not wise for ICAI to lay down more stringent norms at entry level so that people like me need not waste 5 years without a certificate against our name and may be take to more appropriate courses suited for us.

This is a humble request to ICAI so that atleast other people don't waste their time and effort for a course which promises many or delivers nothing because if you are not a CA it means that all your efforts are brought down to NULL value.

It is very easy to say positive attitude bla bla .....

But the facts remains:

Is there a realistic chance of qualifying when the pass% is around 3%. Should the remaining 97% be made scapegoats as mere participants.

This is no sport to say that winning or losing does not matter - only participation matters.

At the end of the day all that matters is

Whether you have passed or not

So, Winning is all that matters. Winners take all.

The Institute wants money only, it will never make entry norm strigent.Dear friend even if all the students are brilliant and study with dedication then also 3% will pass thus remaining 97% will be losers.

dear God is Great

This will be against the principle requirement of CA Trade not profession

They need coolies and how will they get them if there is easy entry. India is highly populated to give false dream to these collies easy entry is must and save Trader's ( C.A ) cost easy entry is must

Regards

ICAI wont listen to you. Otherwise, how will they earn money?Where will they get cheap labour?

As per ICAI, it wants only income and nothing else,...which can not happen if it change the entry pattern....

But from students point of view, the entry process has to be changed. so that atleast few people will be spared from becoming scapegoats finally....
