What you have suggested is a work around.

A good security practice is not to send plain unencrypted password in any email, SMS or chat.

Hello! You look very embarrassed, calm down. There is nothing wrong with that, and even very comfortable. This feature is safe if you use a trusted mail client. I chose between Outlook and Thunderbird, and in this post I helped with this post <https://www.data-fellas.guru/thunderbird-or-outlook-advantages-and-disadvantages-of-the-two/> . My choice fell on Outlook, I hope you choose a reliable email client and don't think about these things anymore
