Now reply to your question.: If u can arrange DVD's from market (not which are being sold) and study materials of concerned teachers then u need not to take tutions. Only thing u have to do that u have to attend all classes in ur home from those DVD's. But as u said that u dont have time then i think it will be very hard for u to be sincere in home regarding classes. If u ll take classess outside then there will be consistency of time and effort.

Now its on u to what to do.

Always welcome for any query.....

I suggest you to join classes because when you study at home there is no consistency. Problems will arise when you sit d own to study (Like relations will come to your home, loude noises outside, home chores etc etc.) on the other hand if yo u take coaching there is some kind of compulsion to attend classes daily and to study at the very least because you have paid the money. I don't know about you (because you are a rank holder) but I am not able to study as I have thought. An yways the choice is based on your skills and self confidence. If you are confident enough that you can manage on your o wn then go for DVD's but I do recommend joining classes for the subject which is of your least interest.

(Studing in home with the help of DVD's and telling you from my own experiance)
